GENERAL FOCUS JOURNALS

The Greening of a Brownfield: A Community Based Learning Project in Economics (Kaufman & Cloutier, 2003, JHEOE)

Infusing service learning into academic ABCs: Awareness, Behavior, Community Collaboration. (Tanner & Brown, 2013, PRISM)

In light of visual arts--A knowledge transfer partnership project as experiential learning. (Lai, 2013, Gateways).
The mission of the Journal of Higher Education Outreach and Engagement (JHEOE) is to serve as the premier peer-reviewed, interdisciplinary journal to advance theory and practice related to all forms of outreach and engagement between higher education institutions and communities.

This includes highlighting innovative endeavors; critically examining emerging issues, trends, challenges, and opportunities; and reporting on studies of impact in the areas of public service, outreach, engagement, extension, engaged research, community-based research, community-based participatory research, action research, public scholarship, service-learning, and community service.

The Journal of Community Engagement and Scholarship (JCES) seeks book reviews for the journal. Book reviews should:

- Focus on recent or foundational publications relevant to the scholarship of engagement.
- Give JCES readers a well-developed sense/description of the book, and go beyond this description to provide a critical analysis of the strengths, limitations and central issues raised by the text.
- Situate the review within relevant theoretical and/or conceptual perspectives, current scholarship, and/or current issues germane to the subject of the book and the scholarship of engagement.

Current Issue, Vol 7 No. 1:

From the Associate Editor: Connecting with Community Partners and Student Scholars

As a board member and reviewer I had read many compelling manuscripts each with the potential to make significant contributions to the practice and scholarship of engagement. This has encouraged me, as associate editor, to see more first-time authors, particularly students and community partners, published in JCES. While JCES has always been responsive to the needs of communities, community partners, and students, issue 7.1 is a significant new step toward enhancing the connections between our professional knowledge and practice and our community partners and student scholars.

Gateways is a refereed journal concerned with the practice and processes of university-community engagement. It provides a forum for academics, practitioners and community representatives to explore issues and reflect on practices relating to the full range of engaged activity. The journal publishes evaluative case studies of community engagement initiatives; analyses of the policy environment; and theoretical reflections that contribute to the scholarship of engagement.

Gateways is jointly edited and managed by UTS Shopfront at the University of Technology, Sydney, and Center for Urban Research and Learning at Loyola University, Chicago.

Subscription is free; please use the Register link at the top of this page to subscribe.

The Journal of Community Engagement and Higher Education is an on-line, refereed journal concerned with exploring community engagement and community-based learning perspective, research, and practice.

The Journal of Community Engagement and Higher Education publishes accounts of a range of research focusing on practical and theoretical insights and understanding, in higher education and across the disciplines and professions. There is a focus on case studies emphasizing community engagement and engaged learning practices, methodology, and pedagogy.

The journal aims to establish and maintain a review of the literature of research and practice. It also provides a forum for dialogue on the methodological and epistemological issues, enabling different approaches to be subjected to critical reflection and analysis.

The Journal of Community Engagement and Higher Education is edited and published by the Center for Community Engagement (CCE) at Indiana State University (ISU) in conjunction with Indiana Campus Compact.

CALL FOR REVIEWERS OF MANUSCRIPTS

The Journal of Community Engagement and Higher Education is currently seeking qualified individuals to serve as reviewers of manuscripts. Reviewers should be able to demonstrate background in and contributions to the fields of community based learning and higher education policy. Interested individuals should submit an email of interest and an abbreviated copy of their vita to:

While there is variation in current terminology (public scholarship, scholarship of engagement, community-engaged scholarship), engaged scholarship is defined by the collaboration between academics and individuals outside the academy - knowledge professionals and the lay public (local, regional/state, national, global) - for the mutually beneficial exchange of knowledge and resources in a context of partnership and reciprocity.

Journal of Public Scholarship in Higher Education

The Journal of Public Scholarship in Higher Education aims to advance the status and prospects for publicly engaged teaching and research in the academy by showcasing the new disciplinary and/or pedagogical knowledge generated by engagement with the community. JPSHE provides a venue for higher education faculty and administrative leadership to reflect on the ways that community engagement affects work in higher education — and its outcomes for broad issues such as classroom teaching, the advancement of research and knowledge creation across the disciplines, faculty development, tenure and promotion processes, the preparation of graduate students, etc. JPSHE welcomes diverse manuscripts, from empirically-based examinations to critical reflection pieces, theoretical investigations, commentaries, case studies, and pedagogical and research designs. All submissions must identify implications for the growth and viability of public scholarship in the academy.

PRISM: A Journal of Regional Engagement is an exciting new journal devoted to promoting a culture of engagement between the university and region through the creation, application, and integration of knowledge. PRISM is multi-disciplinary, publishing quality, peer-reviewed research articles, case studies and applied research articles, and reflections across the full range of disciplinary perspectives. Similarly, PRISM welcomes all forms of analysis and methodologies.

We are proud to announce our Fall 2013 issue of PRISM is now available.

We are currently accepting manuscripts for our unthemed Fall 2014 issue.

PARTNERSHIPS: A JOURNAL OF SERVICE-LEARNING AND CIVIC ENGAGEMENT

Partnerships recognizes that successful engaged learning depends on effective partnerships between students, faculty, community agencies, administrators, disciplines, and more. The articles in this peer-reviewed journal focus on how theories and practices can inform and improve such partnerships, connections, and collaborations. Studies co-authored by faculty, students, and/or community partners; or examining practices across disciplines or campuses; or exploring international networks are all encouraged.

Note: If you're having difficulties printing an article, make sure you use the print button that is part of the Adobe Acrobat plug-in, and NOT the print option in the web browser.
To be able to view the journal, please register for your free open access as a Reader. When registering you will choose a personal login. Other members will not be able to access your information and your information will never be given to third parties.

Welcome to Reflections Journal

Reflections, a peer reviewed journal, provides a forum for scholarship on public rhetoric, civic writing, service-learning, and community literacy. Originally founded as a venue for teachers, researchers, students and community partners to share research and discuss the theoretical, political and ethical implications of community-based writing and writing instruction, Reflections publishes a lively collection of scholarship on public rhetoric and civic writing, occasional essays and stories both from and about community writing and literacy projects, interviews with leading workers in the field, and reviews of current scholarship touching on these issues and topics.

We welcome materials that emerge from research; showcase community-based and/or student writing; investigate and represent literacy practices in diverse community settings; discuss theoretical, political and ethical implications of community-based rhetorical practices; or explore connections among public rhetoric, civic engagement, service learning, and current scholarship in composition studies and related fields.

Inquiries about Reflections should be forwarded to reflectionsjournal.net@gmail.com.
